The Frog Lady (Reclining) · pass 11

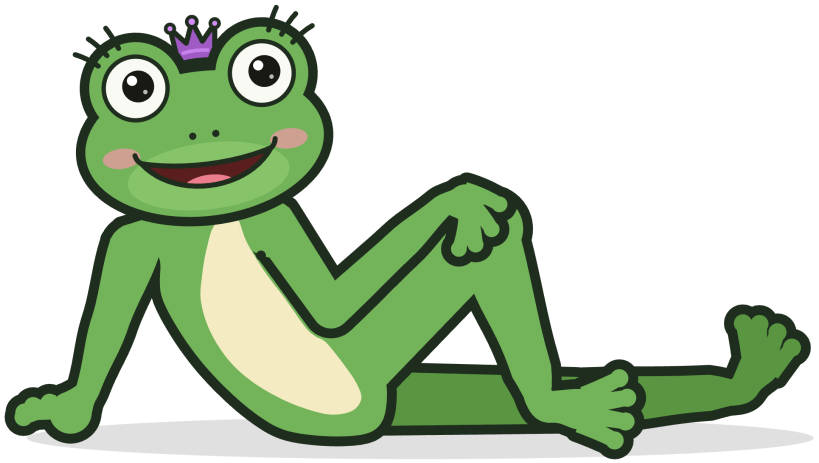

After Laura's four notes of 11/1 (the shoulders, the wrists, the ankles, the belly), on the same kit as pass 10. A drawing pass for Laura's word: nothing in the game changes until she says so.

HER FOUR NOTES, ANSWERED

1 THE SHOULDERS (both)

Her note: the arms are tubes laid on the torso with the outline running across the join. Each upper arm must grow out of the body as one silhouette: no outline across the shoulder, no notch at the neck side of the propping arm, the round of the shoulder flowing into the chest.

THE PROPPING SHOULDER

THE NEAR SHOULDER

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

The propping arm now belongs to the body's own silhouette: one round at the shoulder, the line from under the chin runs onto it and on down the arm with no break, the armpit the only crease. The near shoulder is the chest's own round, the arm's outer edge is the front of the torso down to the elbow, and inside the chest nothing crosses the join: the one line is the arm's inner edge, starting at the armpit.

2 THE WRISTS (both hands)

Her note: the hand on the knee and the propping hand meet the forearm as a blunt tube end with a seam. Taper the forearm into the wrist and let the palm widen out of it in one shape, no line across the wrist.

THE HAND ON THE KNEE

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

THE PROPPING HAND

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

Forearm, wrist and palm are one shape now: the forearm narrows into the wrist, the wrist bends on a round, and the palm widens out of it to the knuckles. The fingers hang from the knuckle line as before.

3 THE ANKLES (both feet)

Her note: the feet are pasted onto the shin ends (a straight cut and a seam). The shin must narrow into the ankle and the foot grow out of it in one silhouette; the far foot, tipped up, bends at the ankle, not at a cut.

THE NEAR ANKLE

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

THE FAR ANKLE

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

Shin, ankle and foot are one shape: the shin narrows into the ankle, the ankle bends on a round with a soft heel on the outside of the bend, and the foot widens out of it to the toes. The far foot tips up by bending at its ankle.

4 THE BELLY

Her note: the cream belly is a detached tilted oval with stripe lines, off-centre and cut by the arm. It should be the front of her torso: centred on the chest/belly line, following the lean of the body from under the chin down between the thighs, widest at the tummy, soft edge, no stripes.

THE BELLY

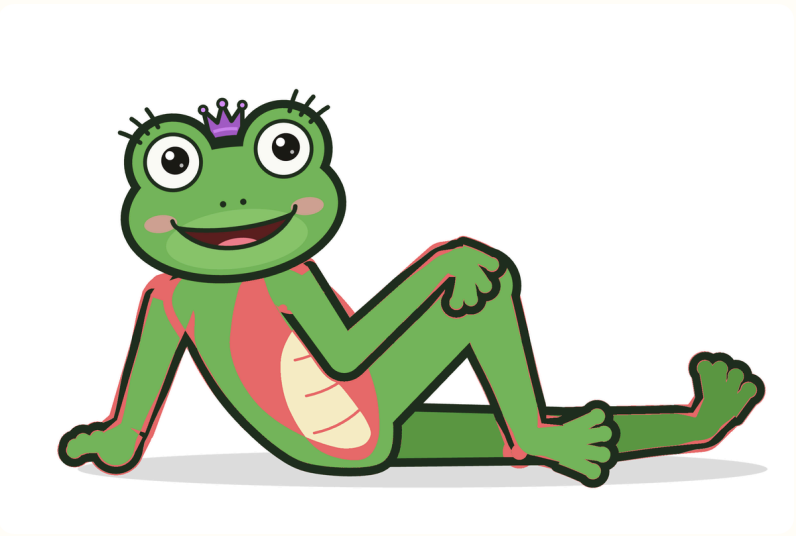

BEFORE · pass 10

AFTER · pass 11

One cream lens on the front of her torso: it starts under the chin, follows the lean of the body down to the crotch between the thighs, is widest at the tummy, keeps a green margin inside the back's outline, and runs beside the near arm's inner line rather than under it. Soft edge, no outline, no stripes.

WHAT STAYED

WHERE THE PICTURE CHANGED · pass 11 with every changed pixel tinted red: 3.3% of the picture, all of it in the four spots and the belly. Inside the face box: 0 pixels.

Everything else is pass 10's

The face, the crown, the tilt of the head and its size; the pose points (the shoulders, elbow, wrists, hips, knees and ankles sit where they sat); the colours; the far leg's thigh and knee, the raised thigh, the knee and the calf; the seat on the floor; the fingers and toes; the floor shadow. The generator still draws pass 10 exactly as it was landed (`kit/build.py --pass 10` is byte for byte the pass-10 file), so nothing moved by accident.

FOR YOUR WORD

- The creases. Her sisters wear three faint creases across the belly; this belly is plain, as the note says (no stripes). If you want the sisters' faint creases back, say so and they come back as horizontal lines like theirs.
- The propping shoulder. Its round is a little fuller than pass 10's arm (34 against 30) so the shoulder reads as a shoulder; slimmer is one number.
- The heels. Both feet now carry a soft heel on the outside of the ankle's bend. Flatter is one number.

What this is: one SVG (viewBox 0 0 1200 800, transparent) + one PNG, drawn by the kit `design/frog-lady-recline-1030/kit/build.py --pass 11`, so every later note is a number to change. The character sheet's row is bg:croaklady-recline (The Frog Lady (Reclining), THE HIDEOUT LOBBY); this pass stands on the sheet's To Do for your word. The sheet and the game take the drawing only on your word.
